WILL INAUGURATE NEW GARAGE WITH AN AUTOMOBILE SHOW

New Spencer Structure Embodies The Very Latest In Every Feature

WILL OPEN SATURDAY NEXT

The new Spencer garage, at the corner of McKean avenue and Second street, which has been in course of construction for the past ten months, work on its erection having commenced last April, will be thrown open to the public on Saturday, February 15.

The opening will be inaugurated by an automobile show in which will be featured Buick, Cadillac, Nash and Scripps-Booth pleasure cars, and G. M. C. Indiana and Nash trucks. The pleasure cars will be shown in all models, and will be the latest creation of the automobile manufacturers' skill in giving to the public the most comfortable as well as a series of the finest motors on the market. The trucks will be shown in but one model, but they will exemplify the many advantages which vehicles of this character bring to the owners.

This exhibition and display will be open daily to the public from February 15th to the 22nd inclusive, beginning at 9 o'clock each morning, and closing each evening at 10:30 o'clock. During the continuance of the exhibition souvenirs will be presented to each visitor, which will be a pleasing reminder of the occasion. To add to the pleasure of the event an orchestra will be present each evening, which will be a feature the public will greatly enjoy.

The Spencer garage is possibly the most complete and most modernly appointed structure of the kind in the country today. After a survey of a large number of leading modern garages in many of the larger cities of the country, the plans, which were drawn by Architect A. P. Cooper, of Uniontown, were finally approved by Mr. Spencer, and work began last April. Every known convenience which in any way adds to the attractiveness of a modern garage and improves t he service to automobile owners has been installed in this latest addition to our local industrial activities.

The building is a two-story structure, constructed of brick, cement and steel, and is as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make it. The garage covers an area of 88 feet on McKean avenue, and running back along Second street a distance of 100 feet to an alleyway along the Pennsylvania railroad.

The first floor includes a show room, the offices and storeroom, all of these on the McKean avenue front while in the rear are located the repair shops and garage. The repair shop is fi tted with every device for the repair of automobiles and trucks, while the garage, which adjoins it, will furnish accommodations for a large number of motors which may be waiting the attention of the workmen.

The personnel of the shop force will embrace the highest skilled mechanics it is possible to obtain.

The oil and gasoline supply stations are located on McKean avenue. Four filling stations, one for oil, two for gas and one for air and water, are located in brick pedestals erected along the curb on McKean avenue, and which are psupplied from tanks located underground, by means of compressed air, all of these commodities being measured through a meter. This method is said to be the most accurate known for the measuring of gas and oil and insures the purchaser of full measure at all times.

The second story, which is reached by means of an inclined runway, or as it is properly termed a "romp" and which is located in the rear of the building, is devoted exclusively to the storage of cars and trucks. Entrance to this floor is from Second street, and is separate and apart from the main entrance to the garage, thus making it convenient to handle cars from this department without interfering with the activities of the first floor.

Entrance to the repair shop is either from the garage or from the alley way, making it possible to handle cars and trucks in this department without any delay.

The old garage, located diagonally across the street from the new structure, will be used for storage and repair work, the business now conducted by Mr. Spencer having grown to such an extent that both buildings are necessary for his extensive operations.

Mr. Spencer began his building career in Monongahela, in 1900, moving to Charleroi about 1904, when there were but two automobiles owned in the town. At that time Mr. Spencer took the Buick agency and through all the years of his business career has handled this car. To this line he had added the Cadillac car as well as the G. M. C. trucks, lines which have met with great favor on the part of purchasers in this and surrounding territory.

NEW ROAD MATERIAL PLEASES THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Promises A Cheaper And Better Material For Highways

SPLENDID FOR RESURFACING

County Commissioners John O. Watson and A. P. Barnum County Controller T. J. Underwood and Engineer George Cheney have returned from New York, where the latter part of last week, as guests of the "Permanent Highway Corporation," of the metropolis, they inspected, out from New York a highway built by this company, and for which they make big claims. The Washington county officials were very much impressed by this road. They were convinced that for resurfacing improved roads it is the thing and can be contracted for a a much more reasonable figure for resurfacing t han has been done by the county heretofore.

The constituent elements of the road a re earthy materials and bitumen, the earthy materials being soil clay or loam, such as are found along any highway, provided it is free from sand. This is reduced to an ultimate degree of fineness that no action or traffic could further reduce or disintegrate. From this the very fine material is eliminated by proper application of heat so that unities in a most intimate manner with the bitumen binder, resulting in a tough malleable mass consisting of fine materials of extraordinary power to withstand the effect of climate, traffic and action of them.

The road is guaranteed to resist the abrasion of traffic, to not break down under heavy traffic, not to be affected by cold or b leed during the summer, not to crack or get warp, to be non-skidding and to be ready for traffic one hour after it is down. If a hole comes into the road a piece of the road material can be pounded into this hole and where it unites with the other surface there is left no scar.

The road is being used by many counties and municipalities and it is highly recommended for street paving. The local authorities ascertained that to resurface a road, such as the Shaft road near Washington, would cost eclusive of the base, about $14,000 a mile. The Shaft road was recently resurfaced and it cost the county about $30,000 a mile. The company is backed by powerful financial interests and prominent men are its officers. Hon. John K. Tener, former Governor, is president of the company.

Will begin Thursday evening February 13 at 8:15 in St. Jerome's Lyceum. Nice favors. Admission 25c All are welcome. Place will be warm. 211-t2-*

JOHN O. WATSON IS NAMED ON COMMITTEE

The executive committee of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners met Saturday at Pittsburg for the purpose of appointing the various standing committees of the organization. J. O. Watson, president of the Washington county commissioners, was made a member of the legislative committee and Thomas Hill, also a member of the Washington county board, was made chairman of the committee on resolutions.

SOPHOMORE CLASS ENTERTAINS FACULTY

Last evening's social function which took place at thenigh school gymnasium was one of the most successful ever held under the auspices of the Charleroi high school. The occasion was the annual party, given by the Sophomore class, to the faculty and members of the student body. The spacious gymnasium was profusely decorated with banners, pennants and flags of the Allies; and, in addition to these, an abundance of red and black festooning greatly enhanced the splendor of the scene. Jenkin's orchestra furnished delightful music for dancing. Refreshments, consisting of French delicacies and ice cream were served. Much credit is due the promoters for the success of the undertaking, inasmuch as several postponements were made necessary by the recent "Flu" epidemic. The following committees were in charge. Decorating: Ira Howard, chairman; Joseph Martucci, president of the Sophomore commercial class; Charles Smith, Howard Bradley, Raymond Rossomme, Aubrey Daniel, president of the Sophomore class; Audrey Michener, Frances Wright and Sudie Zellers; refreshment: Mary Speers, chairman; Grace Williamson, Ruth Fellows, Harriet Underwood, Irene Manon and Alberta Henderson; entertainment: Mary Berryman, chairman; Merle Ryland, Helen Nelson, Anna Kirk and Ila Campbell.

REBUILDING THE WORLD

In more ways than one the old world is in the process of reconstruction. It is going on materially, ideally and governmentally.

And it begins to look like the job is to be done thoroughly.

The peace conference will take care of the idealistic phase. Already it is establishing a new and revolutionary viewpoint. Inevitably it will fix radically changed and helpful standards. Will revise world ideas in many ways.

In Russia, Germany and the Balkans the governmental problem is predominant. So far it is a hopelesss tangle of conflicting ambitions and interests. And until the people come out of the intoxication of their newfound freedom this condition will continue. But eventually sanity will prevail. Law and order will right themselves and government along new and better lines will come.

America's most direct activity will necessarily develop in the actual physical rebuilding of the devastated territories of Belgium and northern France. No other country is so well euipped to do this. In no other country has production along these lines been so little interrupted by the war. No other country has ready to hand such surplus of building euipment.

All of this means continued American industrial activity, continued American prosperity. All of it emphasizes the necessity still for financing both peace and prosperity just as we financed war.

And peace must be financed.

Our mercantile marine program must be carried out. Our industries diverted for the war period to munitions making, must not be permitted to lose out through canceled contracts. Our preparations for the coralling of foreign trade must not be hampered. We must support them all.

This means mutual prosperity for us all.

Loan will take care of all this along with many other of the government obligations.

It is all a part of the plan to finish this war situation in the right way.

And all of us want this done.

All of us must help do it.

THE ONLY REASON

There is one reason aand only one reason why those now in control of the Government will not break the Treasury and bury the taxpayers under mountains of debt. It is that they are not going to continue control of the government.

Nearly three months after the war the administration at Washington is still on a debauch of spending and making contracts to spend. The tongues of bureaucrats still wag wildly in terms of billions. The Government in their hands must still squander, and it must squander in every possible direction at a rate which this country could not stand for long if it had twice the population it has and if it were five times as rich as it is.

After we have come to an end of showering out Liberty and Victory bonds like confetti, where does the administration think it is going to get themoney to pay for all the bills it is still running up and is still trying to obligate the Government to go on running up?

In the prodigious volume those in control of the Government are trying to throw away American money, are trying to commit the United States to a continuous performance of throwing away such money forever and ever, this nation would not have to wait a generation for insolvency. It would not haveto wait a decade. It could count absolutely on being utterly and eternally bankrupt like an Austria or a Turkey before we knew what happened.

But as the legislative squanderers will be put out of the Government on March 4, by vote of the American people, it is incredible that the same American voters will not finish the job by voting at thenextnational election to put out the Administration squanderers. That is the only guarantee of nationalsolvency.—New York Sun.

FRENCH BUILD SUBMARINES WITH DESTROYER BOWS

The French navy makes claim to the most powerful submarine now built. Here is a picture of the undersea craft, just released for publication. The most radical part of the design is the destroyer type bow. The huge torpedo tube can be seen on the side of the craft.

Y. M. C. A. IN FRANCE

Fair-minded people throughout the United States will be glad to recognize the sincerity of Prof. Burgess Johnston's analysis of the situation and management of the "Y" huts. "The dominant impression remaining in my mind," says Prof. Johnston, "is of a body of men and women wholly self-sacrificing, absolutely devoted adapting themselves surprisingly well to multifarious tasks, with an occasional misfit so greatly in the minority as not to affect the picture, even though he has been able to stir up a noise vastly out of proportion to his importance." Serving in a "Y" uniform, but not previously affiliated with the Y. M. C. A., this particular observer went as an entertainer from point to point, and saw the everyday life in a great many huts. The men in charge varied in the necessary qualities of humor and tact, but itseemed to him that not more than one in thirty was really ill-suited to the work he was doing.

And how practical an indorsement of the "Y" hut is its adoption and perpetuation by the French government. Every corner of France, it appears, is to have its foyer du soldat, for thousands of French towns and villages are being interrogated as the first step toward establishing these friendly littlecenters of recreation for the French soldiers as they settle again to local employments. The government and the separate communities are to co-operate, the town or village proving land and labor to erect thebuilding and the nation finding the materials. When the buildings are finished it is proposed that the Y. M. C. A. shall open each center and conduct it until such time as thecommunity, having seen how it is done, shall be ready to take the work over. The French government in short, expresses its opinion of the Y. M. C. A., methods by adopting them wholesale, under Y. M. C. A. management, as a valuable help to national reconstructioon.

CANADA'S WAY.

Canada sometimes has a way of finding the solution of a problem while people suppose her to be still discussing ways and means. Just now the Dominion is turning her deserted aviation field into farm instruction camps, each of which will accommodate a thousand men. The mess halls and living quarters are ready for use. The hangars are quickly transformed into stables for living stock. All repairs to farm machinery can be made in the shops. The grounds are large enough for crops in variety to be planted. All this makes practical training possible. but it has greater value in another way. It saves the man who finds that he is not fitted for farming, or that farming is not attractive to him, from committing himself to an arrangement which he might always regret and which would be of no help to the country. Trial farming, after the Canadian plan, his distinct advantages.

FRUIT FARMING

Two items in the news are seen to have a close connection, when placed side by side. One points to a recrudescence of interest in the raising of fruit in America. The other reports that in Belgium alone 170,000 acres of fruit orchards have been ruined, and that in France 500,000 fruit trees were destroyed by gunfire and by the Germans. It is evident that American orchardists will be called upon to fill a great void in the European fruit market and that they are getting ready to grasp the opportunity.

FOOTBALL IS ANCIENT SPORT

Was Popular Among the Old Romans and Also Found Some Favor With the Florentines.

Can you imagine Julius Caesar playing quarterback on the Rome university eleven, or Brutus skirting the ends in those days when the forum was as busy as a three-ring circus? No? Nevertheless it was a probability, for it appears now that football originated with the Romans.

A few uneducated persons used to think that football was of Greek invention; but Trench and Camp's trained news hounds, aided by Italian propagandists, have fastened it on Rome. The Romans, not really knowing that it was football, called it "calcium." It appears to have been a goodly, rough-going game, full of spirit, feet and broken elbows, played more on the soccer order than the Rugby style in common favor.

With the fall of the Roman empire "calcium" also fell out of the spotlight, not to appear in favor until the time of the Florentines and their Medicis. There is no record of Machiavelli having participated in the games, but we imagine that if he did he played a foxy, clever game. Giovanni de Bardi, a well-known Florentine newspaper man, wrote as follows in 1580:

"The calcio (later name) is a public game played between two groups of young men on foot, not armed, who playfully compete in making a ball, by means of their feet, pass outside of a certain line back of the opposite group. The ball is mediocre in size, filled with wind, and the game is played purely for the honor of winning."

The Razor in History.

In tracing the history of shaving it should be sufficient to go back to the Greeks and Romans, upon whose civilization our own is based. Beards were highly esteemed among the former up to the time of Alexander the Great, who was smooth shaven. One reason for the abolition of the beard among soldiers was the fact that it afforded the enemy something to lay hold of. At an earlier period the wearing of certain types of helmet and gorget had protected the beard. The Romans wore beards down to the time of the Gallic wars, while the Gauls, albeit barbarians, were smooth shaven save for the mustache. The antiquity of barber shops and razors in Rome is variously given by historians. Some have claimed that the first barber shop, at least in that part of the world, was opened in Sicily in 300 B. C., while other authorities make this date far earlier or later. The Sicilian seems to have been the first barber.

Bunnies for Bonnets.

The soft felt hats which constitute the most distinguishing feature of the American soldier's uniform are made from rabbit skins. Not American rabbit skins, however, for the fur of the American rabbit will not make hats. It does not possess the necessary felting properties. Consequently the skins have to be imported from abroad, mostly from Australia. It has taken 36,000,000 rabbit skins to make the hats now being worn by the huge United States army. Since the war began Uncle Sam has bought 6,000,000 hats, and each hat contains the fur of six rabbits. In other words, every American soldier is going about with a half dozen bunnies on the top of his head. Each hat costs the American government $1.75. This is wholesale price. The ordinary retail price of similar hats is $4. The reason why these hats are so expensive is that not only the rabbit skins but practically all the other material that goes into them is imported from abroad. Thus the raw silk for the bands comes from China and Japan, and the shellac which stiffens the brim comes from India.

In the Grip of Light.

A student of physical science says that it is not because the moth is light-hearted, heedless and utterly frivolous that it plunges headlong into the flames, but because of the way that its body is constructed. There are two symmetrical points, exactly alike chemically, on the moth's body—namely, its eyes. If the rays of light modify the chemical condition of one side more than the other, then the moth's power of movement is affected. There is a stronger muscular tension on one side than on the other. If, however, one of the eyes is removed, the chemical symmetry is destroyed, and instead of plunging into the flame it moves about in the circle. There are other animals and insects besides the moth which are hopelessly in the grip of light. If a snail is placed between a white wall and a black wall the unequal lighting forces it to crawl in a circle.

Keep Advancing.

Every man owes it to himself and his fellows to make the most of the present. The new age will offer him the best advantages. The future will lure him with ever greater enticements. There is no limit to what a man may become except such as he mentally permits to shackle him. Every new advance should mean steps forward. Every forward step should reveal new possibilities in achievement. We are building not for dollars and cents but for the great future. As we add superior skill to fitness we enhance personal values and monetary reward comes unsought. But you must rise above the average crowd. The average is slowly rising. You must rise more quickly, insuring each step by progress that brings blessing on your fellows. And all this takes work. But it's work that has its joys.

In an Oklahoma court an attorney had been many times overruled by the court during the morning session. The attorney arrived in the court room at 1:35 p. m., whereas court had adjourned to 1:30. The court and the attorney disagreed as to what was, in fact, the correct time, and the discussion ended with the despairing statement by the attorney: Very well, your honor. Let's have it that way. I had hoped, however, that the time of day was one subject on which we might agree."—Law Notes.

A LONG SENTENCE FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY

John Edward Smith, arrested by the Charleroi police about ten days ago on several charges of highway robbery, appeared in criminal court at Washington on Monday and entered pleas of guilty. He was sentenced to serve from eight to ten years in the penitentiary. Smith was formerly employed at the plate works and when he appeared before court his excuse was that he was out of work, was hungry and in his desperation decided to get money by unlawful means. In the yards of the glass company he held up Joseph Draggon and relieved him of $25. At another time he held up Henry Schreiber, and made a demand for money. When Schreiber broke and ran, Smith shot at him, hitting him in the leg. Smith also held up D. N. Hall and relieved him of a small sum of money.

Born—Wednesday. February 5, to Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Small a daughter—Ruth Adelle.

YOUNG MAN SENT TO THE REFORMATORY

In court at Washington on Monday Earl Frederick Artz of Charleroi, admitted his participation in a highway robbery on the streets of Charleroi, some w eeks ago. He was committed to the Pennsylvania Reformatory, where a week ago Harold Shaner and Charles Rose were committed for thesame crime. These young men held up Charles Francis on McKean avenue and robber him of $25.

CHARLEROI TEAM TO PLAY MONESSEN

The evening at the Monessen high school gymnasium, the Charleroi high school basket ball team will try conclusions with its old-time rivals. A spirited contest is anticipated as both teams are going strong. Monessen now holds the premier position in the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Association league, with Charleroi in third position. A large delegation is expected to accompany thelocals to the scene of action. Monessen took over thestrong South High team of Pittsburg, last week; while Charleroi has recently defeated Canonsburg, one of the strongest teams in Western Pennsylvania and the Farrell, Pa., high school team, the acknowledged champions of Mercer county. The importance of this evening's contest will surely attract a capacity attendance.

Pussy's Whiskers.

Although hirsute adornments of all kinds, whiskers included, were once the real and indispensable thing, modern sanitary practice has made such inroads on unharvested beards and long hair that only a few scattered humans still retain their hairy luxuriance. Notwithstanding this, however, the house cat has grown and nurtured its crop of whiskers or feelers for the last million years or so without bothering about hygiene. Naturalists say that the cat's whiskers are absolutely necessary to it. The whiskers are as long as the cat's head is wide, and the head is as wide as the body, so wherever the whiskers go there may the cat go also. The tiny, delicate hairs grow from a gland and are nerved to the utmost sensibility. No matter how light the touch of the hair against an obstacle it is instantly felt by the cat.

Lucky Kiss.

A man named Winch, a butcher of Sydney, N. S. W., recently took the liberty of kissing a handsome girl who was one of his customers She resented the affront, and Winch was prosecuted. He was fined heavily by the board of magistrates, and lengthy notices of the case appeared in the press. The publicity given to the proceedings happened to attract the notice of a firm of solicitors in Sydney, who had been appointed trustees of certain property which had been left to Winch by a distant relative some years before, the solicitors up to then having been unable to find any trace of the missing heir. Winch was communicated with by the firm, and, having duly established his identity, became the possessor of a snug little fortune.

Wonderful View From Stirling.

It is from the top of a sheer crag, more than 400 feet above the sea, that the famous "links" of the Forth may be seen to best advantage. It is always a wonderful view from Stirling castle, wonderful for its sheer beauty, and wonderful, too, for the wealth of history which surrounds every town and village which dots the plain, through which the river winds on, picking up the light here and there, vanishing into the haze of the distance, and then emerging again as the mist, maybe, suddenly rises; whilst far away on the eastern horizon, just a gray outline against the sky, is the Forth bridge, where the river has given way to the Firth.

The first date of the introduction of the chrysanthemum to occidental gardens is 1764, at Chelsea, where Philip Miller received a living plant from Nionpu and brought it to flower. An obscure record notes the fact that in the preceding century a plant bloomed at Danzig. The continuous record begins with Pierre Blaucard, a gardener of Marseilles, in November, 1808. Having been a sailor he had made the acquaintance of these plants in China and Japan. Two plants of all that he had brought back from the Orient came into blossom in Marseilles, and these he carried in the diligence to Paris. There he had them, through the influence of a Marseilles man in the palace, introduced to the favor of the Empress Josephine. With her gracious approval, the plant took its proper place in ornamental gardening and has advanced steadily in popularity. One of the odes of Confucius is addressed to the chrysanthemum, and is: "Its shining glory, its delicate petals hanging around the center in showers of golden threads, and its tassels on which the light of the sun has been filtered 10,000 times."

RIFLE THAT BOONE CARRIED

Old-Fashioned Flint Lock Said to Have Been Brought to Wisconsin Town by Southerner.

Daniel Boone's rifle, a genuine old fashioned flint lock, carried by Boone on many a perilous trip in the dark and bloody hunting ground of Kentucky and on his famous Indian hunting expeditions, was recently brought into a hardware store in a small town in southwestern Wisconsin for much needed repairs. It is now the property of a Mr. Rafter, formerly of Mississippi, who recently traded his 2,300 acre plantation for Wisconsin property and has moved his effects north. The rifle was given him by a doctor, to whom it had been given by an aged hermit living in the mountains of Tennessee.

The rifle is a formidable affair, a real "long rifle," one of the type that gave the nickname of the "long rifles" to our western frontiersmen. It has a barrel 46 inches long, is 45 caliber a flint lock with a patchbox of inlaid silver, and weighs ten pounds The end of the butt is set with a wild boar's tusk, and has the double or set trigger. On the side of the stock are carved with a jackknife the words "Boon's Tru Fren," on the walnut stock the initials D. B. and five most significant and sinister notches, each notch standing for "one good Injun." At the lower end of the stock is a long and deeply cut gash said to have been cut by an Indian tomahawk thrown at Boone. What happened to the Indian is not recorded.

The rifle, badly broken in shipment has been repaired and is now on exhibition.—Exchange.

ENDLESS CHAIN NOT MYSTICAL

Doctor Fighting Influenza Explains How Curative Serum Went From Patient to Patient.

The prevalence of influenza and pneumonia with their high death rate makes it imperative to resort to heroic methods of treatment rather than to follow the accepted ones only. The lack of serum or other specific remedy for influenza, writes Dr. Charles R Humbert in the Medical Record, together with the inability to obtain antipneumococcus serum forced me to use convalescent serum.

The Endless Chain.—It is a well known fact that persons convalescing from pneumonia have anti-bodies in their blood streams. As soon as the patients' condition permits, therefore they are bled as much and as frequently as possible.

Serum is prepared and treated, and is placed in stock. When another patient comes in with pneumonia, treatment is begun. When convalescence sets in the above procedure is repeated. It is a case of one gives serum to two, two gives serum to three and so on, the procedure becoming endless.

Censor's Office Boy.

It must be the censor's office boy who is responsible for some of the vagaries of the blue pencil. Not long ago some patriotic soul quoted Kipling's line from the "Recessional," "The captains and the kings depart." He had the surprise of his life when the word "kings" was struck out. But worse is now reported. Another scribe greatly daring in the meatless days quoted Thomas Hood's joke in an article on "Wayside Graves," or something equally solemn:

"So they buried Ben at four cross roads
With a stake in his inside."

That was too much for the censor's office boy. A stake in his inside, indeed. The censor's office boy knew if he knew how to spell that the food controller would never sanction a whole "steak"—a nice, succulent, juicy steak, in anybody's inside. So he deleted the offending lines. Who shall say that we are not ardently patriotic people?—London News.

Slow Sartorial Reconstruction.

The question of civilian equipment has its humorous as well as its serious aspects for the honorably discharged soldier or sailor Some are lucky enough to return immediately and completely to "cits," while others less fortunate, must content themselves with a sort of half and half adornment. It no longer causes astonishment to detect a pair of neatly creased trousers hanging stiffly beneath military khaki overcoat, or to see the short blue jacket of the sailor covering an otherwise perfect civilian outfit. These are some of the minor problems of reconstruction.—New York Sun.

To enable the American destroyers and chasers in British waters immediately to effect repairs and renewals there was a repair ship stationed at Queenstown of a remarkable character. The vessel, of about 5,000 tons was a floating machine shop, foundry and store, able to do any kind of repair work short of drydock work. The bakery produced long loaves of crusted bread for all the ships, and once created a most elaborate birthday cake for Admiral Sims.

Seek to Improve Crops.

The Institute of Agricultural Botany to be established at Cambridge England, is to be devoted chiefly to the breeding and distributing of improved varieties of agricultural crops Modeled after the famous Swedish plant-breeding station at Svalof, its scientific specialists will work to produce pure cultures of the new varieties into extensive cultivation.

NO DEMANDS ON LOCAL CONTRACTORS

Charleroi building contractors say that neither the carpenters' nor painters' unions have presented a demand to them for an increase of wages, beginning on the first day of May next. They are of the opinion that no such demand will be made at this time, when building operations are very slow, and when the outlook for the coming year in the way of new buildings is not the brightest.

Germany, says Ebert, will reject a "crushing peace." What with?

LIBERIA IS REACHING OUT

Tribes of That Country, It Is Said, Are Accepting the Teachings of the Missionaries.

Pleyono Gue Welo, a Liberian of the Kru tribe, who graduated from Columbia University, says:

There are [illegible] the entire census of Liberia, but the population is said to be [illegible] 2,000,000, of more than 15,000 are Americo-Liberians, the descendants of liberated slaves. The remainder belong to [illegible] which speak four different languages and [illegible] Mandingoes and Krus. The latter, [illegible] of the coast line, [illegible] of the royal house. [illegible] the [illegible] is absolute [illegible] for the [illegible] of six years, and is [illegible] Other tribes also follow different customs.

The tribes do not acknowledge the government of Monrovia, because they feel that it does not protect them. By treaty the United States government is required to help the Americo-Liberians against the tribes, and in 1912 this country helped put down a rebellion of the Krus.

The constitution of Liberia has a literacy test, which has heretofore excluded most of the natives from voting, as the central government is unable to undertake their education. The Girbas are being taught by Episcopal missionaries, and the Bulingos, who are Mohammedans, are also gaining the franchise. The Krus are very ambitious and are also catching up. There are more than 50 Liberians of the native tribes studying in the United States.

WHEN RAILROADS WERE NEW

Engineers in Charge of Construction Work Had Ideas That Now Seem a Little Peculiar.

Light on strange ideas of pioneer railroad builders was thrown by Edward S. Jouett, general solicitor of the L. & N., in a talk before the Rotary club at Louisville.

"The Lexington-Frankfort line," said he, "was built with longitudinal stone sills capped with a strip of iron, and the numerous curves, which you have all noted, are said to have been purposely introduced upon the theory that they were an advantage in enabling the conductor the more easily to see the rear of his train. The coaches were two-story affairs—women and children below and men above—and the motive power was mules to the top of the hill above Frankfort. The train was let down the hill into the city upon an incline operated by a stationary engine.

"You may be interested, in passing, to learn that with the exception of a few miles near New Orleans, which antedated it about a week, this line from Lexington to Frankfort is the oldest railroad in the United States south of the Ohio and west of the Alleghenies. It was chartered in 1830—very early in railroad history, when we remember that the first railroad in the United States was built in 1826, and the first locomotive engine was operated in 1829."

Health and Height Count.

Every flying man in the United States air service has to undergo a strict medical test periodically in order that he may be classified in one of four grades. "AA" men are the few who can stand air work at altitudes above 20,000 feet. "A" men can stand the strain between 15,000 and 20,000 feet, while the "B" class consists of pilots for duties between 8,000 and 15,000 feet, and the "C" group includes all airmen fit only for service between ground level and 8,000 feet. It has been found that airmen of most robust physique cannot stand the sudden changes of air pressure entailed by diving and rapid climbing for any length of time. Hence the frequent medical examinations, carried out by experts who have drawn up a carefully calculated standard of efficiency.

She Did.

She was a four-flusher, particularly as to her abilities in various sports. "Do you golf?" he asked.

"Oh, I love golf, she answered. "I play at least 36 holes twice a week."

"And how about tennis?"

"I am the woman's champion in our state."

"And do you swim?"

"The best I ever did was a half mile, and that's all," she replied.

Somewhat fatigued he changed to literature. "And how do you like Kipling?" he asked.

"I topped an hour only yesterday," was her unblushing reply.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

TIBET OPEN TO CHRISTIANS

Officials Have Invited Missionaries to Enter Freely Into the "Forbidden Land."

Those disciples of Christ who interest themselves in foreign missions are aroused over an invitation coming to American disciples from Tibet, according to the Boston Evening Transcript. This land, occupying the "roof of the world," has heretofore been practically closed to all foreigners. That it has been so was due, so Tibet officials tell American disciples, to the influence of China. Now Tibet has thrown off Chinese control and one of its first acts is to appeal for Christian missionaries. The disciples have a mission station at Batang, one of the farthest west cities of China, nearly 3,000 miles up the Yangste river.

A venturesome American doctor, sent out by the disciples, journeyed 18 days farther west, getting into Tibet and into a city wherein disease in its worst form, unattended and not understood, ravaged the people. The doctor set up an impromptu clinic and dispensary. The relief was so great that one of the highest civic officials in all Tibet begged him to stay, or if he could not do so to return, build a hospital and official Tibet would help him.

Now the disciples argue that here is a call they are not at liberty to ignore. Their missionary society has acted to this effect. An appeal has been made for four families, two of them physician families, to go. It is said there are no hospitals, no churches, no schools, no Christian agencies of any kind in that country of 4,000,000 people. American manufactured goods are beginning to reach Tibet and Scotch whisky has been there for a decade or two.

OLD BOXER DIES ON FIELD

Dick Burge, Once Well Known in This Country Met His Death Fighting in France.

Late Private Richard Burge of the First Surrey rifles never was a quitter, and, despite the fact that he was at the half century mark, he enlisted and died the death of a soldier. He was once the lightweight champion of England, and was born December 19, 1865.

Dick Burge was a name well known to the fight fans on both sides of the Atlantic 20 years or so ago, chiefly because of his remarkable battle with Kid Lavigne for the lightweight championship of the world. Dick was several inches taller than the Saginaw Kid, and he had a considerable advantage in weight, but, much to his surprise and that of the English fans, he was knocked out in the seventeenth round. He gave a good account of himself before he fell, however, and there were times when the Kid had reason to fear that he had taken on too good a man. After Burge quit the ring he became a fight promoter. That was in 1900. He enlisted as a volunteer in the British army in 1915 and served with the colors for three years.—Detroit Free Press.

Rulers With Business Instincts.

At the outset of his imperial career the grandfather of the former German kaiser, Frederick William, owed his accumulation of money to his commercial dealings. One of his commercial undertakings was to start milk-rounds, which did exceedingly well, in spite of being carried on sub rosa, for the German courtiers found that the imperial favor was dependent upon their patronizing the imperial dairy. In this way the old emperor created a huge milk monopoly in various cities, and reaped a correspondingly large profit. Kaiser Wilhelm himself had keen commercial instincts, and had a finger in most of the big German undertakings. In Germany it was currently reported that Ballin was merely the figure-head of the North German Lloyd line of steamships, and that the kaiser was the real man at the helm, and the same thing was said of many other money-making concerns.

Conservative—By the way, Avery, I understand you want the universal franchise!

Avery—Yes!

Con.—Why, man, do you want your wife to become a politician?

Avery—It isn't that exactly. Fact is, she has always been a—politician.

Con.—Well, what is the reason?

Avery—Pride, pride, my boy—pure, brute, male pride!

Con.—How so? I don't see the connection.

Avery—I don't like the idea of being married to a human being who is classed with the idiots!—London Tit-Bits.

In his recent annual report Maj. Gen. William L. Kenley, director of military aeronautics, states that 4,980 men had been graduated as reserve military aviators, the first rating for pilots, by June 30, last, with 110 bombers, 85 bombing pilots, 464 observers, 389 observer pilots, and 131 pursuit pilots. In the year ended last June 30 there were 15 fatalities in training, or an average of one death to 2,684 hours and 201,000 miles flown. Stalled engines, usually due to an error of the pilot, caused 86 deaths; collisions, 30; and sideslips, 10. The report goes on further to state that 440 balloon officers also had graduated, 155 of whom were fully qualified observers during the year.—Scientific American.

CATALONIA GREAT SEA POWER

Spanish Province Centuries Ago Held Undisputed Naval Sway—People Still Proud of Achievements.

The Moors were expelled from Barcelona in the ninth century. Catalonia had more than four centuries' start over Seville and six over Malaga. It is little wonder, therefore, that Spanish enterprise, if such a term is applicable, is seen at its best in Catalonia, because it has had a real opportunity to express itself. Catalonia has always looked beyond its geographical limits. It has, in fact, looked seaward. It was on the shores that the men of Barcelona found riches and glory. They were the pupils of the Pisans, Genoese and Venetians and Barcelona can boast of a naval history as great perhaps as theirs. Catalonia for a time held sway of the sea, and it was only upon the consolidation of Spain at the beginning of the sixteenth century and the rise of the great modern states that the city was eclipsed as a sea power. The Catalonians, proud of their achievements, looked with little favor upon Columbus' discovery of America, an enterprise which had been promoted by neighboring Castile.
